

European Plastic Window Association

EPW

Articles of Association

I NAME, REGISTERED OFFICE AND PURPOSE

Article 1

1.1 An international organisation called European Plastic Window Association (abbreviated to EPW) has been established to safeguard the common interests of the European industry and manufacturers of plastic windows.

Article 2

EPW is a non-profit association with seat in Frankfurt/Main, Germany. The purpose of EPW is to study – primarily from a scientific, technical, educational, economic and institutional point of view – topics of common interest to the industry and manufacturers of plastic windows, more specifically:

- 2.1 EPW shall promote plastic windows and to safeguard the supranational interests of members as appropriate, in particular by
- exchanging information and experiences on issues that are important to the sector,
 - conducting joint technical, educational and economic activities in order to ensure a level of playing field for competition,
 - cooperating with other association with similar aims
- 2.2 EPW shall promote its members' common economic, technical, educational and political interests before the European Commission, the European Parliament and other European bodies. These interests are important for the European plastic window sector as represented by EPW.
EPW also wishes to serve as a platform to represent the interests of associations of companies, specifically in respect of certain products. Groups such as these can independently safeguard interests associated to such products.

II MEMBERS

Article 3

3.1 Members of EPW are the representative national associations of European countries pursuant to the conditions required in Art 4.1.b.

Article 4

4.1 New members shall be admitted to the following conditions:

The following may become members of EPW

- a) Membership may be applied for by national associations representing the industry and the manufacturers of plastic windows in European countries.
- b) Each country will be entitled to only one membership. In the case of countries where there are several similar associations representing the industry and the manufacturers of plastic windows (associated equipment and associated components), it will be the responsibility of those associations to take such steps as may be necessary to secure one single representation at EPW. In case of disagreement among the different associations, the EPW Management Council will choose the representative one by voting with a simple majority. A decisive fact will be the manufacturing basis of the membership of the applying associations.

4.2 Observer status

- a) Observer status may be applied for by individual companies of European countries which are engaged in the manufacture of plastic windows as long as representative national associations do not exist in such countries. Those companies will submit the specific aim to constitute a national association within two years. After this period they will anyhow lose their observer status.
- b) The Management Council can permit individual companies, experts, and associations with similar aims to attend Management Council Meetings and can invite them to take part in the work of special committees.

4.3 Admission of new members must be approved by the Management Council. Applications for membership must be addressed in writing to the General Secretary.

4.4 Members can withdraw at the end of a calendar year only after having sent a registered letter to the President at least six months in advance. It will be liable for their subscription up to date and for the present year.

4.5 Exclusion of members is possible only by decision of the Management Council according to the following rules:

Any member who contravenes the present Articles of Association, seriously prejudices the interests of EPW, does not fulfil its obligation towards EPW in spite of being requested to do so, or no longer meets the requirement for admission, may be expelled by passing a resolution made by at least three members. The member concerned shall not be entitled to vote on such resolution but shall be given the opportunity at the Management Council to defend itself and meet any of the accusations made against him.

4.6 Withdrawal or expulsion shall not release members from their financial obligations for the calendar year in progress at the time of such withdrawal or expulsion. These members shall have no claim to the assets of EPW.

Article 5

- 5.1 The annual budget and the annual subscription are approved by the Management Council on proposition of the President together with the Vice-Presidents.
- 5.2 The annual subscription has to be paid by no later than March 31th each year. Other subscriptions (e.g. for special committees) shall be paid in time to be able to finance the purpose of such activities in advance.
